DEATHS. ie 5th January, Eleanor Massey, the wife of Andrew John Leach, Barrister-at-Law, agod 25 years. At 15, Miller Road, Shaughai, on the 3rd January,

Hongkong, JANUARY 11TH, 1887. WE are glad to be able to congratulate the Hon. C. P. CHATER alike upon the subject of his maiden speech in the Legislative Council and the manner of its delivery. Mr. CHATER is thoroughly practical and he is in downright carnest in, all matters affecting the interests of the Colony. His remarks on the subject of the defences of Hongkong were therefore, as might have been expected, clear and to the point. He wants to see the island placed in a completely effective state of defence, and is not disposed to think too much of the cost. He regards it in the light of insurance, a commercial and commonsense point of view, and rightly considers that the Conference to be held in April will afford a good opportunity for making the claims of the Colony to protection properly known. The reply elicited from the Acting GOVERNOR by Mr. CHATER was in some respects very satisfactory. No better mon than Mesers. Krawtok and Jackson could be nominated to represent the Colony at the forthcoming Conference. Both of thom are most thoroughly conversant with the condition of the place, and Mr. Jackson, who made a personal inspection of the fortifications before he left, and who takes a great in the Corps d'Armée; and I have always done so terest in the scheme, would gladly, we believe, take part in the Conference. It might be well, perhaps, in view of the contingency of one of the two gentlemen above named being appointed, to send to them any sug- intimate friends. gestions that the Council or the community

Whether this be the case or not, we cannot see what is to be gained by the appointment of a Committee composed of guages which is to be established in connection the officials Mr. MARSH has named. The Major-General in Command of the Forges is, in any case, responsible for the defence of the Colony, and the Colonels of Engineers and Artillery are his subor- the Reichstag and the Prussian Diet the Oriental dinates, whose advice he may accept or seminary will be opened. Now all those office scientific works respecting China. Other nocers naturally at present constitute a standing Committee of defence, and we fail to see that there would be any necessity for formally appointing them. What Mr. STAR-MOPE contemplated was, we imagine, the appointment of a local Committee to cooperate with the regular Naval and Military Authorities. The Commandant of the Volunteers, the Harbour Master, the Marine Sarveyor, and two or three of the residents who are either possessed of means of transport such as steamers or steam launchés, or wield great influence among the active members of the community and could induce them to take part in measures for self-protection, would be sources at the command of General Cameron. The Superintendent of Police will always have and those of his force on the work of keeping in check the lawless portion of the population. To do this effectually he sught to be left with a perfectly free hand, and the Police should never be reckoned as part of the disposable Forces for defence against invasion. Were there any report of an impending attack upon the place, it is probable the signal among the criminal classes here and on the adjoining mainland for an ateye would need to be kept upon them and every precaution taken to prevent a rising. on the part of the Government. Some time ago they advertised for tenders for the supply of 350 revolvers for the Police Force, and a Committee was appointed to consider the offers. On Saturday last the Committee held a meeting in which out of a large number of good and bad English, French, American, and German patterns submitted by European and Chinese deale s, they selected the worst of the lot, which was offered at the low price of $2.75 apiece. This action of the Committee has taken everybody by surprise. I wonder what confidence can the men of the Force have in such inferior weapons; and what protection can the community expect from men thus armed? It is the universal opinion that the Government have thrown away over $1,000 for nothing. Naturally the members of the Force are much annoyed that the Committee should have made such a selection, and it is said that many of them prefer their old English revolvers brought out from London some time in 1880, for which the Government paid $11 each, which although old are yet good pistols. new ones, after a few months' use will be useless for the purpose they are intended to serve and a source of danger in the hands of the men, whose life would seem to be of no value considering the meither being sold nor pawned. EXECUTIONS AT PEKING.

The 11th December, says the Sheh Pao, was the execution day at the Capital, and there were thirty-one prisoners, among whom were several men of rank, who wore under sentence of death second dialect till he has obtained one for his by decapitation or strangling, under the direction of the Board of Panishment. On the day previous all the necessary preparations were made, and the convicts were treated to a bountiful repast of wine and victuals, according to an ancient custom with prisoners just bofore their execution. Early the next morning the condemned were taken out of their cells and placed between two bodies of soldiers, and, having been secure ly bound and manacled, were placed in carts and at once conveyed to the execution ground outside of the Hann Wu Gate, where a mat should had been erected for the accommodation of the tonding the execution. These officials took their seats and awaited the arrival of the Imperial Decree granting or withholding pardon to the hapless victims who were so soon to forfeit their lives to atone for their orimes. Detachments of soldiers in charge of the local officials were stationed along the walls to maintain order. At a little after noon the Imperia. Order was received consigning three of the calprits to death by decapitation and sixteen of them by strangulation, and to the remaining twelve, four of whom were men holding official positions. His Majesty granted a reprieve and they were accordingly taken back to their cells in the charge of the Board of Punishment. It was about 40'clock in the aftermoon when the executions were ended. It is said that a man, related to the Imperial family, b the name of Tsai-san, who was under sentence of death by strangulation and was to be executed on the same day with the other prisoners, escaped by climbing over the wall on the night previous to the execution; and although strict search was made he has not yet been re-arrested. Three yearsago this man kept agambling establishment outside of the Tung An Gate; and having on one occasion caused the death of a man by means of red-hot irons, one of the Censors by the name of Liu memorialized the Throne; and the  ${f matter}$  having been investigated by Imperial  ${f D}e$ oree, and on his guilt being clearly established, he was sentenced to death by strangulation. Among the number who were pardoned by His Majest was Chang Ch'eng, Admiral of the Chinese flee at Foodbow at the time of the slaughter by th French last year. This unfortunate man had ben immured in a dungeon ever since he wo taken to Peking, and his life had been given up as lost by all his friends and relatives. It however, if rumour is correct, to the efforts of Vicercy Li Hung-ch'ang, who interceded in his schalf with the Seventh Prince, when H Highness visited Tientsin, that he owes his life On that occasion the Vicercy represented to His Imperial Highness that, incomuch as China has at present urgent need of mish who were qualified in naval and military warfare, it would be a wise policy on the part of the Government to save such mon as Chang Chiong and thoothers who were then awaiting sentence of death at

A Peking correspondent in the Chinese Time ays:-I have been so often struck with th cheerful liberality of the Chinese that I am always against them as if it were beyond dispute. It is a noor sort of charity after all that is doled on by an institution, unless it bas government one and whatever may be said against almsgiving as we shall soon have a crisis, as trade generally is far as the receiver is concerned, it is a blessing to the giver. The claims of charity upon us in China are few compared with those at home, and, if we do not want the springs of mercy within us to be choked up entirely it might be as well to give them a little vent, occasionally by putting our hands in our pockets. No doubt there are many baggars idle who might work and cease to beg. and often one turns angrily away from Apiece of misdirected economy has been encoted a sturdy fellow who might be wheeling a barrow; but I think it will be found, by a little examination and questioning, that most every beggar you meet in China is either physically or mentally incapable of work And the Chinese recognise this, and, for me part, I am always glad to see our beggars with heir baskets well filled. There is one fran. well known in Peking, who must be waxing rich. He is quite blind, and is guided by hi aged mother who is strapped on to his back, a spectacle of filial piety which saldom fails to move the compassion of the passers by. Then there is a tiny little fellow from Shantung, who perhaps, rouses more cariosity than pity, saems so contented Poor little fellow, he was born without arms at all, but he gets his bowl in one foot, and his chopsticks in the other, and shovels his rice into his mouth as deftly as his brother who has the regulation number of limbs. It is a sight to see him eating ground-nuts, taking up each nut between two toes, eracking it open, and lifting the kornel to his mouth with the disengaged foot; and if you throw him a coin he picks it up with the greatest nonchalance and drops it into a pocket in the breast of his "continuations" (his clother are all of a piece). The beggar may well say that the Emperor has institled his claim to be called the Father his people. The severe cold had hardly set in when all our beggars appeared, each one in fine new quilted coat of a pale brown colour, with an inscription by the Yamen issuing them stamped on the back and front to ensure its were opened in different parts of the city, and assemble for a bowl of soup, which, if not very sustaining, is at least filling. ### MARINE SURVEY FEES IN HONGKONG.

brief but interesting discussion took place in the Legislative Council on Friday on the subject of marine survey fees. A short Ordinance has been introduced which Li provides that in addition to the fees specified | Li in the Merchant Shipping Ordinance of 1879, L fees shall also be payable for other services L which the Marine Surveyor may be asked to M render. Under the new Ordinance a person 1 having a ship built may ask that it shall be it inspected by the Government Marine Surveyor during construction. The fee payable for this inspection is $15 for vessels under goal keepers, Mr. Mitchell-Innes only keeping 50 tons and $15 for each additional 50 tons. goal for Wallace's side for the latter part of the The Hon. P Rygge objects to this fee as time, and Mr. Eagles relieved Dr. Thompson at being far too high. The Hon. H. G. THOM-BETT, Harbour Master, considers it very reasonable. Before considering the question of whether the fee is high or low an important point arises as to its character, whether it is compulsory or whether it is only a fee payable for services asked for. Mr. RYPLE says it is a heavy tax on ship-

There it is not necessary that a vessel should be built under official inspection in order to secure a certificate'; so long as she can pass the standard after she is built the manner Government does not and ought not to conto the shipowner, "If you like to have your ressel inspected during construction the services of the Government Marine Surveyor are available on payment of certain fees on a fixed scale." . That it is desirable the played during the salternoon. services of the Government Marine Surveyor should bemade available in the way proposed will not be disputed. The question, therefore, is simply as to what those services are worth. The Government ought not to fix the fees at an exorbitant rate, neither ought the shipowner to expect to obtain services for his private benefit at the public expense. It would, be just as reasonable that the public should pay the carpenter as that it should pay the surveyor. Anything in the unture of a tax on shipbuilding could not be tolerated for a moment, but the fees in question are not a tax, they are simply a charge to be made for certain services when those services are rendered. But to fix some arbitrary figure and say that if a man can afford to build a ship of 2,000 tons he can afford to pay $600, as Captain TROMSETT said, is as absurd as it would be to say that if a gentleman can afford to build himself a house at the Peak be can afford to pay $600 a year in taxes. Mr. Rynre says he does not object to the charge of $15 for the Wilson first 50 tons, but he argues that $15 for every additional 50 tons would make the total amount payable on a large ship, say one ! of 2,000 tons, excessive. The amount would be, for a vessel of this tonnage, according to the proposed Hongkong scale, $600; according to Lloyds' scale it would be £75, or say $450. Association Game. The second game of the season of the Hongkong Football Club was played on the Race Course ground on the 4th instant under Association rules. Sides were picked up from those on the ground by Lieut. Lawrie and Mr. Wallace, and there was a capital, evenly contested game. From the first Lawrin's side pressed their opponents hard, keeping the ball, with the exception of one or two good rushes, in their territory. For a long time, however, there was no scoring made though there were -several-corner-kicks-for-Lawrie's side. At length, however, Wallaco's goal man, who had had little or no experience of the Association game, incautionaly left his post to kick the ball back from the left side. THE GOLD MINES IN SHANTUNG

Says the Chinese Times :- The gold mines in Shantanic, which promised so well last spring. were kept back for some time by the difficulty of transporting machinery from the sea-port, owing to the absence of roads. This has now, we understand, been overcome. But there are other obstructions to successful working, which are not got over. The Tao-t'ai Li himself has not been near the place for six months, and has, we hear. been transferred to some other post. The officials who direct the operations follow the timehonoured practices which have ruined so many other enterprises, and the prospect of obtaining a supply of gold from Shantung seems remote. It is to be hoped better success will attend the mining experiments which seem likely to be resumed in the North. The copper and other may be remembered, were visited by experts two duce some tangible results.
